

Bugs Are Creepy

I think that bugs are creepy, gross, and annoying. I don't like them. In fact, I hate them.

When I say "bugs," I mean all insects and spiders. I think they are all creepy. For example, they are often furry with long skinny legs. Many have wiggly antennae, and some have wings and can fly. They look weird, like miniature aliens. Who knows, they might be aliens! I have no idea why they exist.

Another terrible thing about bugs is that bugs bite! Mosquitoes, spiders, ants, earwigs, and many other kinds of bugs bite. Some bugs like ticks or mosquitoes bite you to suck your blood. Yuck! Others bite you just to hurt you, whether you are going to kill them or not. One time, a tiny black ant bit me, and it really hurt. Some bug bites can even kill you, like a scorpion's bite and the bites of certain spiders like black widows. Also, you might die or get sick if you get stung by a bee and are allergic to bee stings.

Since bugs are everywhere, you can't get away from them. They are in the city, and they are in nature. For instance, you can find them on the sidewalk and in the dirt. They are in the garden under every rock and on the prettiest flowers. They are in your house. They are in your kitchen and on your food! Do you really feel like eating food after a fly has landed on it and taken a bite? Gross! Bugs even come out at night to fly around lights. I just can't get away from them!

As you can see, I think that bugs are strange, disgusting, and really annoying. I don't want to see them, touch them, or be bitten by them. I'm sure I'm not the only person who feels this way about bugs. . . . I bet you do, too!
